

The Institute of Emerging Health Professions at Thomas Jefferson University presents:

Graduate Certificate in Healthcare Diversity Leadership

The Institute of Emerging Health Professions and the Enterprise Office of Diversity, Inclusion & Community Engagement at Thomas Jefferson University is launching a new graduate certificate in Healthcare Diversity Leadership.

This program is designed to meet the professional development needs of those charged with managing or leading diversity initiatives. Learners are trained to effectively implement change by addressing issues of equity in their healthcare organizations. In keeping with the importance of providing evidence-based clinical care, the course content and process incorporates evidence-based management.

LEARNING MODULES:

- Business Imperative of Diversity, Inclusion and Cultural Competency
- Systems Thinking and Organizational Design
- What is Culture?
- Leadership Concepts to Implement Change
- Measurement and Evaluation
- Diversity Management and Inclusion
- Multidisciplinary Collaborations
- Supplier Diversity
- Multicultural Communications and Marketing

PROGRAM DETAILS:

- Part-time online course with three on-campus weekend sessions
- 7 graduate credits
- 10 month program

ADMISSIONS REQUIREMENT:

- Bachelor's degree
- Currently employed at a health care organization or serving in the community with a regular interface with healthcare organizations

APPLY:

Complete your application online at Jefferson.edu/Diversity

CONTACT US:

Email: IEHP-Info@jefferson.edu | Phone: 215-503-1111